

Sheraton Grand Hotel, Mayfair

Located in the heart of Mayfair, 31-49 Brick Street is a new-build extension to the Sheraton Grand London Park Lane Hotel providing 135 new hotel rooms and function spaces. Our design creates a contextual response to the site constraints and will dramatically improve the public realm on this narrow Mayfair street with a recessed ground floor and an active frontage.

The building is split into three stepping blocks. These are emphasised with differently coloured brickwork and further articulated with varied window treatments to create a rich and vibrant façade to the new streetscape with high-quality materials and detailing.

Our design includes a unique sculptural link bridge across Brick Street between the new extension and the existing listed hotel which takes reference from the fluted columns and the decorative corning of the Art Deco interiors within the existing Grade II listed hotel.

Client
Sir Richard Sutton Ltd

Services
Architecture

Size
135 guest rooms

